15:47:58 From Dana Watts : <https://nearpod.com/>

15:48:42 From Katrina Theilmann to All panelists : What are people's thoughts about and experiences with synchronous core classes and asynchronous electives (e.g., drama, robotics, etc.) in MS?

15:48:48 From Dana Watts : Our panelists are all on social media and can be found via their Twitter accounts here: @MEGodek @alee_teach @txteacher27 @tararonzetti @juouelle

15:50:35 From Dana Watts : And on many social media platforms, you can find banks of resources by following some of these hashtags: #ISSedu #englishchat #socialstudieschat #onlinelearning #remoteteaching #virtuallschool

15:52:08 From ISS Communications : Zoomjam.org is a great resource to make things fun

15:52:24 From Dana Watts : Using breakout rooms in Zoom really helps students connect. As the host, you can move back and forth into breakout rooms and allow students to have closer connections

15:53:08 From Angela Broeckel to All panelists : Yes - but how do you know students are staying on task? Even with a student leader in the class, how do you have accountability?

15:53:20 From Dana Watts : 20 Zoom Activities: Simple & Engaging Activities w Young Children: <https://fdt-freebies.s3.amazonaws.com/Zoom+Activities.pdf>

15:53:35 From Emily Miller to All panelists : THANK YOU!

15:53:46 From Sara Jones : We have started a passport system for "Fun Fridays". We choose a destination out of a hat and travel there virtually. Students look for the things that resonate with them - music, cooking, language... Then they each get a chance to contribute to the conversation and we all learn about the destination. There's turn taking, social studies, fun and connection. Then at the end of the week, they earn their next passport stamp.

15:54:17 From Katrina Theilmann to All panelists : Thank you for your generous time and expertise!

15:54:18 From Atiya Abbas : This was so helpful and reflective!
